THE EDITOR'S CHAIR LESSON

Teach AI Your Taste

Revision + feedback for grades 6–8: your feed learned your taste one like at a time — now teach it to AI. Students build a Taste File, then draft, get notes, and revise. AI is your editor, not your ghostwriter. No prep, no devices needed.

My Taste File

Name: _____ Class: _____ Date: _____

Your For-You Page didn't guess your taste — you taught it, one like at a time. An editor works the same way: it can only match your style if it can SEE your style. This page is your style, written down. Your editor (a partner or an AI) gets to use ONLY what's here.

♥ SECTION 1 — THE VIBE

Circle the 3 tone words that sound most like you:

funny • chill • hype • dreamy • blunt • dramatic • lowkey • poetic • bold • mysterious

One tone word of your own: _____

♥ SECTION 2 — HOW I LIKE IT SERVED

Check every format you actually enjoy reading:

☐ short + punchy ☐ story mode ☐ lists ☐ step-by-step ☐ big picture first, details after

♥ SECTION 3 — PET PEEVES

Finish the sentence: "Editor, never do this to my writing" (Example: "Don't make me sound like a textbook.")

♥ SECTION 4 — TALK ME / NOT ME

Write one sentence about your weekend that sounds exactly like you. Then write the same sentence in a voice that isn't you at all.

ME	NOT ME

♥ SECTION 5 — INTO RIGHT NOW

Describe the vibe of what you're into — music, shows, games ("fast anime-style battles," "sad songs that still slap"):

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR LESSON • LESSON 4 OF 6

Teach AI Your Taste

A 45-minute revision and feedback lesson. The hook: your For-You Page didn't guess your taste — you taught it, one like at a time. Students write their taste down in a one-page Taste File, then run the loop that makes AI safe for schoolwork: draft it yourself, get specific feedback, revise it yourself.

AT A GLANCE

TIME	MATERIALS	TECH NEEDED	PREP
45 min	Taste File + Editor's Chair worksheet (1 per student)	Optional — works fully unplugged	Print worksheets. That's it.

OBJECTIVES

- Students can explain why vague input gets vague feedback — from an AI, or a person.
- Students can build a Taste File: a one-page style guide an editor can actually use.
- Students can run the editor loop — draft, seek specific feedback, revise — with the human doing the writing at both ends.

HOOK — THE ALGORITHM KNOWS YOU (6 MIN)

Open with: "Raise your hand if your feed knows you a little too well." Take 2–3 answers to these:

"Two people download the same app on the same day. A month later, one feed is all horror edits and the other is all cooking videos. The app didn't guess. How did it learn?"

Land on: every like, skip, rewatch, and follow is a signal. You taught it your taste — and the more precisely you signal, the better the feed serves you. Your feed is the proof: it IS your taste, written down in likes and skips.

Bridge: "Here's the flip side: a fresh chat knows nothing about you. It knows nothing about your taste until you teach it. Today you write your taste down on one page — and then you use it to make YOUR OWN writing better."

The Editor's Chair

The loop: YOU draft → your editor gives notes → YOU revise. The editor never touches your writing.

♥ STEP 1 — DRAFT IT YOURSELF

Write 3–4 sentences: the About Me for a channel or profile page you'd actually make. Target = your taste file. No AI, no partner.

♥ STEP 2 — THE EDITOR'S NOTES

Give your editor — a partner playing the AI, or a real AI — your draft AND taste file. Rules: 1. Point to the taste file, exactly 2 notes, no rewriting.

Note 1 — points at Taste File section # _____:

Note 2 — points at Taste File section # _____:

♥ STEP 3 — REVISE IT YOURSELF

Rewrite your draft. Star (*) every change you made.

EDITOR'S LOOP CHECKLIST — THE LOOP, DONE RIGHT

I wrote the first draft myself — no AI, no copying.

Each note points at a real taste-file section and is specific enough to act on — not "make it better."

I rewrote it myself and starred what changed.
